The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

4,550

Henry M. Whitney of Massachusetts may be called a Bartlett pear just now.

Massachusetts now knows that Felix W. McGottick can stir up a hornet's nest when he tries.

The blushing autumn bride only reflects the foliage of the season, than which there is nothing more beautiful.

With the championship base ball series now on, what would many millions of Americans do without their daily newspaper?

Who said that personal journalism is on the decline? A recent issue of one periodical contains the name of the editor signed 53 times.

Increasing attendance in Vermont Sunday schools might indicate the approach of the Christmas tree season, but it doesn't. The pain is bona fide and not watered stock.

Inasmuch as Governor Floyd said it himself, it must be true that New Hampshire "is the best governed state in the union." Still it would have sounded better from some other lips.

The state railroad commission is unable to place the cause of the accident at Dodge bridge that endangered the lives of many passengers. Railroad men have no hesitation in placing the blame on poor track. — Montpelier Journal.

In which event, the blame would ultimately be on the railroad which permitted such a condition to remain uncorrected. There then you have it.

There is an old saying in the newspaper fraternity that there is some irresistible attraction about the work which calls one back, even after some years of wandering in other fields of endeavor. Sherman P. Allen, once with the Burlington Free Press, who has just joined the Washington staff of the New York Herald after several years' absence from journalistic work, is a recent exponent of the saying. If Allen shines in his new position as he did on the Free Press, his Vermont friends will say: "I told you so." For Allen was regarded highly in the profession.

TUFTS COLLEGE'S DILEMMA.

Once more the horn-to-tribulation principle of joint education of men and women is being buffeted about by the adverse winds of sharp criticism. Each co-educational institution has its turn sooner or later. Tufts college in Medford, Massachusetts, is now the center of the agitation which, strange to relate, is started by the head of the institution himself. President Hamilton sounds his note of warning in his annual report of stewardship. The warning has an urgent tone, for President Hamilton says that unless the college wishes to become an institution almost exclusively for women, there must needs be a change at once. His remedy, as in all colleges where the agitation has reached respectable proportions, is the segregation of the women into the annex, or to speak vulgarly, the side-show of the educational arena. The evidence of the need he gives us by stating that out of about

In the line of Hosiery for Fall we have simply put our foot in it. The designs were so attractive, fresh and original that we waded right in. If you like color, if you like good stuff, you'll be right with us. Solid colors, too, of every hue.

150 entering students this year, only eleven men are taking up the course in arts and literature.

It needs to be stated, however, that this decrease in classical students at Tufts college is not a condition peculiar to the Medford institution, but is prevalent throughout the higher institutions of learning all over the country. Young men are turning from the pursuit of purely classical studies to immediate specialization or the engineering course, civil, electrical, mechanical, mining and a quantity of others. So, therefore, the presence of the young ladies, or "co-eds," at Tufts college, is not wholly responsible for the great decrease in male students in the classical course.

Without doubt, however, the system of joint education of men and women is in part and in growing measure responsible for the condition, of which President Hamilton complains. There is a certain prejudice, especially among students of the male sex, against taking a collegiate course in a co-educational institution. Various considerations, each of itself a minor one, unite to develop this prejudice into quite a serious obstacle for young men to overcome. Hence, they find their way to other than co-educational institutions, or to the scientific courses where woman does not penetrate except in small numbers. As President Hamilton says, this is a condition which, however well grounded or unsatisfactory, must be dealt with if the course in liberal arts is to be pursued by young men; and as Tufts was founded for men, he sees no other course open than segregation of the sexes. The scheme of co-education is steadily losing ground in the eastern states.

MONTPELIER

Mrs. John N. Harvey and Miss Doris Reinhardt, her sister, left yesterday afternoon for Montreal to visit at the former home of Mrs. Harvey.

Senator W. P. Dillingham has gone to Washington, D. C., to remain for a few days. He was accompanied as far as Brooklyn, N. Y., by Mrs. Paul S. Dillingham, his daughter-in-law.

Dr. J. R. Grimes of this city and Drs. J. W. Jackson of Barre and J. H. Jenkins of Northfield went yesterday to St. Johnsbury to attend the annual meeting of the State Medical association.

The examinations begun Wednesday morning at the State House by the state board of pharmacy were concluded yesterday. The result of these examinations will not be known for several days, until the members of the boards have had an opportunity to thoroughly examine the papers. The members of the Massachusetts board of pharmacy, who were guests on Wednesday of the board, left yesterday, some for their homes, and some to visit in other places in Vermont.

WILLIAMSTOWN

E. M. Edson returned last night from his trip to Boston.

No merchant can hope to carry so perfect a line of goods as to do this. All we ask is a chance to make good, either by exchanging or refunding. So do not be timid about letting us know what your grievances are, and we will not say that you are the only one that has found fault, either. Eastern Estate Tea Co.

Tom Waters will be seen at the opera house next Monday evening in his new musical comedy. The Mayor of Laughland. Judging from the interest already being displayed, this show will be greeted by one of the banner houses of the season. The company includes thirty-five people, is equipped with special scenery, and has a wealth of rich costumes. Mr. Waters appears in his favorite role of an Irish politician, whose ability to get himself into trouble forms the basis of an excellent plot.

In another column of this issue will be found a very interesting list of bargains offered by A. A. Smith & Brother, quick sales and small profits being their motto. They offer a lot of ladies' and gents' $3.50 and $4 shoes at $2.98; lot $2.50 and $3 shoes at $1.98; lot of double-breasted wool underwear, regular $1.25 grades, at 89c; lot 25c wool and cashmere hose at 19c; lot ladies' rubbers, 49c; lot gents' rolled-edge rubbers, 70c; lot $1.50 and $2 hats at 95c; lot $2.25 Waltham watches, $1.29; lot $1.50 Waltham watches, $7.96; lot $5.50 watches, $2.98; lot $2 rings, 98c; lot $5.50 solid gold rings, $2.98. ## RANDOLPH.

Will Rand is home from Springfield for a few days.

Miss Mary Wedgwood went to Manchester, N. H., for study in the library there.

W. N. McCollom has returned to Montpelier, Lake, Enfield, N. H., where he is building a cottage.

Alden Kenney, who has been out of health for some time is now in a critical condition, the result of heart trouble.

A. H. Miller and family have returned and taken up winter quarters in the cottage of H. H. McIntyre on Randolph avenue.

The house on School street owned by the Herrick estate and occupied by A. J. Curtis, is being repaired quite extensively on the outside.

The funeral of John Haskins was held at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon from the late residence, the members of the Masonic fraternity attending in a body.

Joseph Butterfield of Fitchburg, Mass., is visiting relatives in town. He was a former resident here having been employed in the Salisbury mill for twenty years.

The E. F. Emerson company manufacturers of doors, sash and blinds have lately enlarged their building by the addition of office room and greater storage capacity. The entire building is being treated to a fresh coat of paint, giving the exterior an attractive appearance. The Emerson company have greatly improved their property since purchasing it some two years ago. Anything along the line of progression seems to be adopted by them. They having within a year installed an electric light plant for use in the building, besides many other improvements to simplify labor. At present they employ 24 men, but it is hoped and confidently expected that the force of the workers will be enlarged to insure the demands of the already increasing business.
